TRAVELLING TO ARCO

Arrival by car

Arco is about 45 minutes from Trento, the capital of the autonomous province of which it is part. The connection by car can be made through the A22 Brennero, with exit Rovereto south and direction Garda Lake, then continue along the SS240 state road in the direction of Mori - Riva del Garda - Arco.

Arrival by train

Arco has no train station, the nearest train station is in Rovereto, about 24 km away on the SS240. Once in Rovereto (for example if you are coming from Verona airport), you can connect to Arco by bus lines number 301, 751 and 205 in about an hour's travel time

Arrival by plane

The town of Arco is located less than 10 km from the Lake Garda. The closest airport is near Verona, the Villafranca Airport (VRN), about an hour's drive by car or 3 hours travel by train. Connections to this airport are numerous, both in Italy and in Europe, thanks to low cost airlines such as Ryanair and others: Air Lingus, Air Baltic, Alitalia with Rome Fiumicino, British Airways with London Gatwick, and also EasyJet, Eurowings, Meridiana, Thomas Cook, Volotea, Transavia and others, which guarantee a considerable passenger transit. Public transport between the airport and Arco is by train from Verona Porta Nuova, Rovereto railway stations or by bus (line 332) in about 1 hour to Arco station. By car you can use the A22 motorway for 84 km for about an hour's drive.
